onference to-day between the Marquis of Salisbury and Lord Randolph Churchillwhich, by the way, lasted just one hour-Lord Randolph proceeded to the Cariton Club. There the members were gathered o hear the result of his conference with the marquis.

egarding the conference is that the two ders became reconciled, each granting cessions in relation to the administra on of affairs, and that a cabinet is now ing formed on the basis of the agreemen etween them.

The Marquis of Salisbury will confer with the queen again to-morrow. In the meantime nothing will be done regarding for-eign, colonial, or Indian affairs without the Marquis of Salisbury having been first con-

Marquis of Salisbury having been first consulted.

It is semi-officially announced that Sir Stafford Northcote will be created a peer and be given a minor place in the cabinet; that Lord Salisbury will be premier and secretary of state for foreign affairs, and that Sir Michael Hicks-Beach will be chancellor of the exchequer and leader in the house of commons.

Lord Salisbury has definitely accepted the premiership. It is stated that Sir Stafford Northcote has accepted a peerage, leaving Sir Michael Hicks-Beach to lead the conservatives in the house of commons. Lord Randolph Churchill will have an important position in the new cabinet, but the distribution of portfolios will not be decided until the arrival of the queen, who is traveling with the utmost haste. Lord Randolph Churchill agreed to the renewal of the coercion act on condition that it only be forced if found imperative.

Several liberal ministers held an informal meeting at Mr. Gladstone's residence to-day to decide upon their action in response to the conservative overtures for support.

Lond Randolph Churchill's action yesterday is generally attributed to fear that Lord Salisbury and other leaders would ignore his claims to office and to desire to retard the progress of the seats bill in order to give a chance, if possible, to appeal to the old constituencies, which are more likely to support the conservatives.

old constituencies, which are more likely to support the conservatives.

LONDON, June 17.—The queen has offered Mr. Gladstone an earldom in recognition of his services to the queen and the country. Mr. Gladstone asked that he be allowed to forego the honor.

The News, in an editorial on this subject, rejoices at Mr. Gladstone's decision, and says that no title could add to his fame or enhance the enthused devotion of his countless admirers; besides, his leadership is required in the coming struggle to secure unity in the liberal cause.

The Standard announces that the Mar-

CHOLERA—TERRIBLE MORTALITY—THOU-SANIS OF PROPLE PLEERS.

MADRID, June 16.—In the province of Castellom de la Plana yesterday there were eighty cases of cholera and sixty deaths. Thirty thousand people have fled from Murch owing to the terrible dread of the disease which has taken possession of the people. In the city of Murch alone vesterday there were, according to the latest returns, sixty-four fresh cases of cholera and thirty-nine deaths. In the province of Murch, outside of the city, there were fifty cases of cholera and sixteen deaths within the same period. The Official Gazette confirms the statement that cholera is raging in the provinces of Valencia, Castellon de la Plana, and Murch, and in the city of Madrid. The "opposition" newspapers, on the contrary, deny that cholera exists in Madrid, and say that all testimony regarding the suspicious cases is insufficient to give warrant for the assertion that they are cases of cholera.

There were five new cases of cholera in this city yesterlay and one death from the same disease. In the city of Valencia there were two fresh cases, but no deaths. In the province of Valencia, however, out-side of the city, there were forty-eight new cases and twenty-seven deaths.

Gen. Grant Arrives at Mt. McGregor Extremely Weak and Weary, and Glad the Journey Was Ended.

Mr. McGregor, N. Y., June 16,-When Gen. Grant alighted from the train hors a large banner confronted him, bearing the large banner confronted him, bearing the words, "Welcome to Our Hero." At the moment a photographier with camera on the platform took an instantaneous picture of the general alighting. The general, steadled on each side by Henry and Harrison, his attendants, started to walk from the train to the Drexel cottage. The secent was easy and the distance short, but his strength falled, and he was placed on a chair, which was carried to the cottage by two porters. Mr. Drexel and Mrs. Grant were close behind the general, and his household and servants followed, forming a little procession. On the cottage stoop were close belind the general, and his household and servants followed, forming a little procession. On the cottage stoop Miss Drexel welcomed the party and conducted the ladies to their rooms. The general walked to his room on the same level as the broad piazza, and there he sank into a chair, with pillows beneath and behind him. Perspiration was standing on his face, and the strain of the journey gave way to a reaction of extreme weakness. He laid back with closed eyes, and the nurse fanned his face. Dr. Douglas was very anxious to examine and cleanse the general's throat. He found that considerable irritation had been caused by fine black dust which had lodged in the throat during the journey, but said that the surface underneath, though inflamed, appeared better than he had expected. The swelling outside had steadily increased after passing Hudson, and during the last hour of the trip it rapidly filled forward on the neck and below the collar. The general's voice, which was better at starting than on Monday, had utterly falled him, and any effort to speak resulted only in faint and almost inaudible aspirations.

The general's voice, which was better at starting than on Monday, had utterly failed him, and any effort to speak resulted only in faint and almost inaudible aspirations. The doctor thought this aphonia was due to the fatigue, which was greater during the last hour of the trip than at any other time. When the doctor had cleansed and treated his throat Gen. Grant appeared on the plazza, and was seated on a pillow-cushioned chair with his feet resting in another. His skull-cap was drawn down and his neck protected by the upturned collar of his gown. His elbows rested on the arms of the chair, his hands were clasped, his eyes closed, and the watchers said he was enjoying repose. This, however, was not so. After ten minutes he arose, and, with his cane, slowly walked into his room and laid down. In faint whispers he let Dr. Douglas know that he was very weary, and was glad the journey was ended. His pulse, ordinarily Ti, was 80 beats to the minute. The family are all quartered at the cottage, but Dr. Douglas has his rooms in the house.

Dr. Douglas remained the entire evening with Gen. Grant, who, despite fatigue, was wakeful until 10 o'clock. His throat was then painted with coccaine, and he settled for the night. Dr. Douglas retired to an

Dr. Douglas retired to an adjoining room, though he has rooms at the hotel, and the nurse was left to watch with the general who, at this hour (II p. m.), is quiet as though sleeping. The family are now retiring for the night.

Peter Mitchell asked the government if the state ment in the Montreal press to the effect that no arrangements had been perfected between the Canadian and United States governments under which American fishermen would be prevented from taking fish men would be prevented from taking fish in Canadian waters until Congress meets in December, but that hopes were entertained that arrangements would then be made which would settle the fisheries question from all time to come was correct.

Sir John Macdonald said he was not sorry that the question had been asked. He had told the member for Digby (Mr. Vali) some time ago that the government had had the subject under consideration and that papers in connection therewith would be laid on the table of the house before the end of the session. At the present time the government was applying to the colonial office for leave to lay these papers before parliament. He had no doubt that consent to do this would be given, although the late changes in England might delay matters somewhat, but some very important documents would be brought down as soon as it was possible to do so.

BY FINE BATTING THE NATIONALS EASILY DEFEAT THE VIRGINIAS,

Being the First Game Lost by the Latter on Their Own Grounds This Year-Other Games Yesterday-Racing at Home and in England.

RICHMOND, June 16 .- The game here to day drew a very large attendance, great interest being felt in the meeting of the leaders in the race for the Eastern League championship. To the chagrin of the ad mirers of the Virginias, the Nationals won an easy victory by batting Kimber's pitching all over the field. The chief feature of the game was the splendid hitting of Hoover and Powell's stragetic pitching. Gagus also batted and fielded in fine style. The home catted and heided in line style. The home club excelled in fielding, but none of the nine except Johnson and Corcoran could do anything effective with Powell's delivery. Greenwood, Latham, Tate, and Higgins were conspicuous for fine fielding in behalf of the Virginias, as were also Knowles, Hoover, Fulmer, and Gagus for the Nationals. The score follows:

Applicants for positions as postoffice inmasters.

Applicants for positions as postoffice laspectors will be examined by a committee appointed by the Postmaster General for that purpose on the 18th and 19th Instant, at the office of the civil service commission.

The Postmaster General yesterday issued the following explanation of his official action in eight cases: The postmaster at Bozeman, Mont., was suspended upon the report of the inspector, showing gross carelessness in the management of his office. The postmasters at Winona, Minn.; La Porte City, Iowa; North Manchester, Ind.; Cambridge, Ohio; Augusta, Ga., and Ballston, N. Y., were suspended for proofs of acts of partisanship while in office. Some were editors, and their newspapers in some cases have contained scurrilous and indecent personal attacks upon officers of the government. In some cases it has also been established that the postmasters kept hanging in the postoffices the political placards of one party and refused those of the other to be there displayed, these placards being sometimes indecent pletures or entoons unfit for the eye of respectable persons. In other cases political notices, circulars, and newspapers of the opposite political party were shown to have been detained in the post-office.

THE JURIES ORGANIZED.

Singular Plea Overvuted and a Humane Society Officer Detailed. Justice MacArthur, in the criminal court yesterday completed the organization of the juries for the present term of the court. Mesurs. Edward Caverly, William Dulin, Alpheus Middleton, M. L. Granville, U. H. Ridenour, P. L. W. Thompson, and W. H.

Hoover were accepted as talesmen to fill vacancies, and Alpheus Middleton was selected as foreman. The court instructed the jurors as to their duties, and then respited them until next Monday.

The panel of petit jurors was completed by the acceptance of the following to fill vacancies: Messrs. Wallace A. Bartlett, William Wolf, Frank K. Ward, R. F. Baker, E. L. Robinson, J. Richard Riggles, L. P. Bradshaw, Alfred Pope, A. R. Vermillon, George Jones, T. M. Embrey, George Woolridge, Charles Armor, and J. W. Colley.

"I have none; a sort of roving commission," replied Mr. Ward.

"Well, we will detail you for duty in this court for a time," said the judge.

Mr. Ward had thrice before escaped the court, but this time found the judge heading him off at every turn. His honor being president of the society and Mr. Ward's superior officer, the detail was gracefully submitted to.

President Zaldivar at the White House President Zaldivar, of San Salvador, yesterday had a long interview with the President and Secretary of State, during which Central American affairs were thoroughly discussed. President Zaldivar expressed to President Cleveland his gratitude for the moral support rendered the peo-ple of San Salvador and the kindness evinced by the government during the Bar-rios's revolution, and also tendered his own rios's revolution, and also tendered his own and his country's thanks to the President for the peace policy followed by this government, a policy he said which cannot fail to be productive of the best results to this country in its efforts to increase its commerce with Central America. President Zaldivar was cordially received by the President and was greatly pleased with the interview.

The alumni association of the National College of Pharmacy tendered this year's graduating class a banquet at Solari's last graduating class a banquet at Solari's last night which proved a most enjoyable affair. In addition to the graduates and the officers of the alumni association there were present at the banquet board John Milburn, W. S. Thompson, G. G. C. Simms, Chas. Becker, E. T. Fristoe, Albert M. Read, S. W. Waggaman, Edward Whitfield, Drs, J. R. Walton, Magruder, Muncaster, Standford, J. A. Watson, S. Edgar Mahan, and E. C. Stott. The menu embraced all the delicacies of the season, and was served in most excellent style and in keeping with the reputation the house enjoys. Prof. Albert M. Read sat at the head of the table.

For the Benefit of the Blind. The concert for the benefit of the Mary-Ford's Opera House on June 23, at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, will be a very en-tertaining one, as a number of well-known artists have been engaged to appear. This school is a very popular one and is under the patronage of a number of benevolent ladies. Tickets can be obtained at desig-nated place.

Hon. Joseph S. Miller, commissioner of internal revenue, became suddenly iil in his office yesterday, and was removed to physician. Mr. Miller has been overworked lately, and this, together with the excessive heat, prostrated him. He will probably be confined to the house for several days, though no serious result is apprehended.

GRADUATES OF ALL GRADES

DOCTORS OF PHARMACY, COLLEGE CAN-DIDATES, AND SKILLED ARTIZANS. Useful Work-Well-Equipped Men for

There were some fair faces among the commencement yesterday afternoon, but the majority bore traces of a troubled early history or perhaps ancestry. Only in the bright, intelligent eyes was the result of the training received in the institution observable. There were eighty-nine of them, of ages ranging from 6 to 16, and of both sexes. The visitors were not numerous owing to the fact that the institution, half way to Tennallytown, is not very accessible on foot in such weather. Several of the board of visitors were preent, also some ex-pupils or alumni. The graduating class of the year was not present, the twenty-nine members are all earn ing their living at trades taught them in the school. Fifty-seven pupils had been left over from the previous year, and sixtyfour new pupils entered during the session ol, making the record for the year 10 pupils.

The exercises consisted of recitations and The exercises consisted of recitations and songs, all the result of a single week's preparation. There were no prizes, only a list of promotions, to the reading of which the elder children paid great attention. The samples of work done were examined by the visitors on the way out, every tree-box on the streets being the manufacture of the little men of the school. Superintendent Stockbridge occupied a seat in the rear, J. W. Donglass being in charge of the execution of the programme. Miss M. A. Conrow, the other teacher, lent her aid as an accompanist to some of her pupils. Many of the older girls were tastily dressed, but the semi-uniform that the younger girls and boys wore was at once appropriate and neat.

A short address was delivered by Rev. Dr. Black, of Scotland, who is making a brief stay in the District. After the exercises were over the buildings and grounds were inspected, the result being entirely satisfactory.

Graduates of Pharmacy.

Graduates of Pharmacy. It was thought that the heavy shower of last night would diminish the size of the audience at Ford's Opera House to witness the sixteenth annual commencement of the National College of Pharmacy. The house was well filled, however. Considerable attention had been paid to decorations, and the work showed excellent judgment and taste. The stage was almost hidden by the banking of flowers at the footlights. Large plants had been set at either side and others banking of flowers at the footlights. Large plants had been set at either side and others in the center, and between these were placed the floral gifts to the graduates from their friends. Flowers had been wrought into almost every conceivable design, and a majority of the pleces were very handsome.

The Marine band occupied the orchestra, and furnished excellent music. Shortly after 8 o'clock the faculty came on the stage and took seats on the left, and were followed by the graduates, who went to the opposite side. Prayer was offered by Rev. C. A. Griffiths. The salutatory was delivered by Francis A. St. Clair. At the conclusion the degree of doctor of phasmacy was conferred upon the following graduates by Dr. Charles Backer, president of the college: James F. R. Appleby, Claries A. Beeler, R. Bennett, G. R. Lee Cole, J. seph A. Horrigan, Albert L. Lawrence, William K. Mitchell, Alfred Moss, Edward C. F. A. Schaefer, and Herman B. Waddy. The graduates, after receiving their diplomas, were addressed by Prof. Samuel Waggamar, M. D. He was followed by Dr. Albert L. Lawrence, we delivered the valedictory, and which closed the commencement exercises.

Findings of the Court of Inquiry Upon Which the New Trial Will be Held. The findings of the court of inquiry is e case of Paymaster General Smith were made public yesterday; also the fact that a court-martial will be ordered at once for the court-martial will be ordered at once for the trial of that officer. The conclusions of the court under the several heads of investigation, including purchases of beef and pork, flannel, butter, mattresses, &c., as affecting the manner in which Paymaster General Smith performed his duties, are summarized as follows:

That Paymaster General J. A. Smith, chief of the bureau of provisions and ciothing, in the Navy Department, according to the facts and circumstances established:

1. Has been derelict and negligent in his duty and empably inefficient in the performance thereof.

2. That he has, to the detriment and po-ace thereof.

2. That he has, to the detriment and pe-miary loss of the government, favored ustin P. Brown in his orders and con-acts. 3. That he has violated the laws regulatr the duties and responsibilities of his lee, and that those violations were to the etriment of the government.

4. That he has been in many ways un-uithful to the trust imposed on him by his dee.

5. That the mildest interpretation that the court can put on his acts is ignorance of his legal responsibilities and duties, a gross neglect of his duties, and indifference and inefficiency in the performance of them.

SHOCKING DEPRAVITY.

The Bevelations of a Prosecution by the Humane Society in the Criminal Court

The first trial under the new law making a punishable offense to entice or receive girls under 18 years of age into a house o Il-fame took place before Justice ManArthur in the criminal court yesterday, Ada Chipman being charged with enticing Sadie with receiving her into a house of Ill-fame on the 25th of last April. The testimony of the girl was to the effect that she had of the girl was to the effect that she had been told by these parties that by entering upon a life with them she would have money and fine clothes.

On the cross-examination the witness admitted that she, her mother, Ada Chipman, and John Cronin occupied one room, and from the testimony it was difficult to tell what might have been the relations between them. She denied ever living with Cronin as his wife, but admitted receiving money from him whenever she asked for it. croin as his wife, but admitted receiving money from him whenever she asked for it. The greater portion of the testimony was unit for publication, and if it can be relied upon shows a remarkable state of depravity among the parties.

The trial was not concluded when the court adjourned for the day.

The New York Custom House The Secretary of the Treasury has recived a report from the collector of ens coms at New York in regard to the force toms at New York in regard to the force employed under his direction, and the methods of doing business. The collector submits reports from the heads of the sev-eral divisions of his department, and one from the surveyor of the port, from which he says it will be seen that in the opinion of these officers no reduction can be made at this time without detriment to the ser-vice. These reports he says are based of these officers no reduction can be made at this time without detriment to the service. These reports, he says, are based upon the present condition of the force, making due allowance for such temporary absences on account of sickness as are reported monthly to the Secretary of the Tressury. The collector also submits a list of sixty-nine vacancies now existing in his office, most of which have occurred at intervals during the present collector's torm. The salaries of these positions aggregate nearly $00,000 annually, and the list represents the reduction of force which he has been able to make. Any further reduction at this time would, in his opinion, be injudicious. The collector says further that the expense of collecting the revenue at New York has been, during his term, at a lower rate than for any previous four years, and for the first fiscal year of that term about one quarter of 1 per cent less than for any previous year. The simplest methods of business consistent with the safety of the revenue have been adopted from time to time as they have suggested themselves, and the collector says he has therefore no recommendation to make at present in that respect.

A SWINDLER FINDS A BOARDING HOUSE HE CANNOT BEAT.

How Mrs. Harrison Was Induced to Contribute $388 to a Foreign Famfly's Support-Hotel Crocker to Parnish Quarters for the Distinguished Visitor. It was not because he wanted to beat Mrs. Harriet A. Harrison out of her board bill that Rudolph Von Baron took his wife and child to live at that lady's house in Deember. 'Tis true that Rudolph had no money, but then he told his landlady so, and she, having compassion on Rudolph, induced her husband to let him have some and she, having compassion on Rudolph, induced her husband to let him have some goods. Rudolph had noble blood in his veins, and often when the sun had gone down he would go down to the parlor and, mingling with the family circle, relate his wonderful deeds in his German home, and tell of his fabulous fortune, all in German bonds, of which there was $275,000 worth soaked away in one of the leading banks of Europe. This was a good scheme of Rudolph's, and the days that followed were happy cues, and when the size of his board bill was incidentally mentioned to Rudolph he would reply, reassuringly, "Oh, just wait until my $375,000 worth of bonds arrive; I'll fix it, Don't-worry now," and the good Mrs. Harrison would smile and let Rudolph have $5 more, "just until them bonds git here."

About the list of March the clouds of cloubt that overshadowed the brow of Mrs. Harrison grew thick and ominous. Then for days Rudolph would not appear at the family table. One day he came down with sprightly step, and, going up to Mrs. Harrison, said, holding a letter in his hand, "it's all right, Mrs. Harrison, you can have your money now; I am to go to New York and get my bonds." That night Rudolph hit Mr. Harrison for $11, as the saying goes, and went to New York. He returned the next day with a tin box. This, he said, contained the bonds. With many mysterious utterances and sines, he gave the box to Mrs. Harrison to keep for him. He also gave her a check for $250 to estite the bill, but raked her not to present the latter until he had negotiated his bonds. This simple act of generosity and faith on Rudolph's part made him solid again; there were no shadows on the horizon for him then, and his box was guarded inght and day.
